Prosecutor Will Press In- ness as they bestowed their kisses on vestigation of "Furnace every eligible male who could be Murder" From Every ficult. Silk pajamas vied with many other freakish costumes and all unmarried women above the age of 25.

Columbus, Ohio, November 25 .- Be- status. lieving that they now have a definite lead which will reveal that Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, wife of the Bexley Lutheran minister, was murdered by a tramp and that her body was then stuffed into the parsonage furnace, authorities have begun a search fer a mysterious beggar who called at several homes in the Sheatsley neighborhood the day the furnace victim was found cremated.

After bringing in a dozen blood stained articles of clothing and furniture from the Lutheran parsonage, detectives late Tuesday found a bloodspattered coat in a north side drycleaning shop. It was scorched down the front and one of the cuffs appeared to have been singed. The man who left the coat last week was a stranger to the proprietor of the shop, but told him that a woman on the "east side" had given it to him.

Bexley Is on East Side. Bexley, the suburb in which the cremated body was found, is on the east side. The article of clothing was left in the shop on Monday, the day of the death of Mrs. Sheatsley. Sevof the Sheatsleys have reported that a strange man had been begging clothes at their back doors on that day. When refused clothing, several said, he bad asked permission to go into the basement to warm himself in front of the furnace.

From this evidence the authorities are piecing together a theory that the tramp gained access to the Sheatsley basement, where he murdered the par son's wife and stuffed her body into the firebox to cover up his crime.

Have Good Description of Man. We will do everything to find the clothes beggar," Prosecutor John R. King said Tuesday night. A search for the tramp has been started, detectives having gained his description from the proprietor of the cleaning shop and women who saw the tramp

The man appeared to be about 28 years old. He was six feet tall and wore a navy pea-coat, cordaroy trous ers, army shoes and a khaki shirt. Aside from the new clue, evidence has all led up a blind alley, King admitted. But he said he was confident that the new lead would develop the solution of the mysterious death of the pastor's wife.

To Question Family Again. However, while the search for the beggar is being carried on, King will continue to question neighbors and friends of the Sheatsley family. Wednesday he probably will question the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of the victim, and his four children, who are expected back from Canton, where they have been staying since Thurs-day, when they buried Mrs. Sheats-ley's remains at Paris.

Testimony Tuesday revealed that Mrs. Sheatsley was perfectly normal Inauguration of an independent bus service between Atlanta and Marietta threatens continuation of in-terurban service, P. S. Arkwright, president of the power company, stated in a letter sent to city au-thorities of Marietta, Atlanta and smyrna, and Fulton and Cobb county boards of commissioners. The interurban line never has paid dividends and in 1923 failed by $11.550 to make operating expenses, Mr. Arkwright stated. Letter to Sims.

The company's letter to Mayor Sims

The company's letter to mayor Sims follows:

My Dear Mr. Mayor:

We have your letter of the 10th instant, asking us to sign a petition to repave Butler street. It is estimated that the assessment against the street railroad for this work, including the paving and the cost of reconstructing the track made necessary by the paving, will aggregate approximately $20,000.

any other similar way. It will be compelled to resist them.

The street railway's financial condition has been brought about by the policy of imposing all sorts of special taxes and extra charges upon it, over and above taxes on ordinary business enterprises, requiring it to meet large and constantly growing charges for paving the streets of Atlanta, and on top of that, permitting unregulated and untaxed jitneys to run on the same streets with the street cars, thus taking away the revenue essential for the support of the street railway service and to meet the demands upon it.

If existing conditions continue, the time is near at hand when the street railroad will not be earning enough to pay the wayes of the men and the cost of materials consumed in rendering the service. This means that the street railroad will be compelled to stop operating for lack of funds to pay the cost of operation.

These are literal facts, and the condition is in no sense overdrawn or overstated. We have been using every possible means to bring these facts to the attention of the authorities and the public, and have stated time and again what the inevitable result would be. This letter is for the nurpose of notifying you, as mayor of this city, formally and officially, that the result which was predicted has happened. Quick action and relief are necessary, or it will be too late to save the transportation service. The aituation should be handled in its entirety, in a permanent manner, if this community is to be furnished with any permanent form of comprehensive transportation in future.

I regret that the street railroad cannot join in the petition to paye Butler street, and unless the present conditions are remedied it will rot be able to pay any paving assessments in 1925.

Yours very sincerely,

(S.) H. M. ATKINSON,

Chairman.

"I feel that it is the duty of the governor to make a state matter of this probe," the solicitor said, "and the solicitor said, "and the solicitor said," and "and the give protection to all citizens of the state. The hands of the law should not fall solely on the exchanges in Atlanta. Many of these out-of-town exchanges have business connections in Atlanta and are violating the law."

Women Lose Fortunes. In discussing the indictments Tuesday the solicitor charged that many women in Georgia had lost their fortunes in speculating in futures on margins, and that several of these, crushed by the blow, had been forced to go to hospitals. He cited one instance of a north Georgia woman, who, he said, "lost everything she had."

Mr. Jones Tuesday, in commenting on this statement of the solicitor, tated that "it may be true that some excellent ladies have lost their for-tunes and their health in speculating on cotton futures," but pointed out the same speculations could have been carried on through New York, New Collegies of Chicago houses by wine Orleans or Chicago houses by wire.

Coach do not need to get out of the car to enable rear seat passengers to enter or leave either door.

This is only one of the many improvements which the Buick Coach, with its Fisher-built body, offers to those who prefer the Coach type.

The Buick Coach body is wider—it is longer. Three grown people can ride all day in the rear seat. There is more than enough room for both passengers and driver to stretch and relax. Seat backs, front and rear, have deeper, more comfortable cushions.

The Coach, as Buick builds it, is a modern closed car, restful, convenient and substantial. Its lines are smart. Their smartness is enhanced by the soft, velvety finish of Duco -Cobalt Blue on the Master Coach, Brewster Green on the Standard Coach.

Thirty and more improvements on Coach design, including Buick 4-wheel brakes, are yours in the Coach as Buick builds it. ..

Irving Astol, United States army aviators, who perished when their plane caught fire shortly after they took off from Marshall field, near Fort Riley, earlier in the day.

The plane burst into flames without warning as it ascended over the big military reservation, according to meager advices.

Captain Bedinger, who was in charge of the doomed plane and whose home was at Richwood, Ky., was an uncle of W. E. Bedinger, a civil engineer, of Decatur, Ga., with offices in the Candler building here. Sergeant Astol lived at Sheppardsville, Ky.

The nephew of the fated aviator told The Constitution late last night that he had not seen Captain Bedinger since the world war ended. At the beginning of the war, Mr. Bedinger said, his uncle enlisted in the medical corps, but was almost at once transferred to the aviation corps, performing distinguished service for the American government here and a coad.

Mr. Bedinger had not been officially notified of his uncle's death up to last midnight.

'Fly' Will Attempt To Climb Hotel AIR FIELD PURCHASE By Big Searchlight

In all probability, Atlanta will not purchase a municipal airplane landing field this year. The finance committee of city council Monday recommeded that council delay buying the field until 1925 because the city has no money to spend for the project at this time, and because the committee does not favor obligating the city fo buy anything until an estimate of next year's revenues is at hand.

The proposition, which was referred to the finance committee by council, recommended that Atlanta pay $8,125, or one-fourth of the city's share of the purchase price of the Nichols property on Brown's Mill road, this year, with the remainder.

Penn Public Service Corporation's New Financing, by Which This Growing Utility Will Substitute 5 Per Cent Bonds for 71s, Strengthens Its Capital.

piece of financing done by the Penn Public Service Corporation a few days ago illustrates what one power and light utility has been able to do within a four-year period.

When Penn Public raised funds in 1920 by floating its Series E bonds a 7 1-2 per cent coupon had to be offered. Money was dear and the industry had not then reached its present prosperous condition. Other good utilities were borrowing then on a similar basis. A Happy Turn in Events.

Fortunately for such borrowers as Penn Public, money rates in the last four years have cheapened and earnings have risen. The combina-tion is a happy one and the Penn Public Service Corporation has devised a way to make the most of it.

The corporation is borrowing $4,000,000 to be used in part to refund the $2,350,000 issue of 7 1-2 per cent bonds which do not mature until 1935. The new series of first and refunding mortgage bonds bear a 5 per cent coupon and a 1954 maturity date. Substitution of a 5 for a 7 1-2 per cent rate reduces the corporation's annual interest charges, while the distant maturity assures the low rate over a long and that there would be no split up of stock this year. The fact that 7 1-2 per cent bonds of four years ago were brought out under the same mortgage that now carries 5s certainly em phasizes the improvement in the whole situation.

Penn Public's Territory. The Penn Public Service Corporation owns and operates a system which, including the Erie Lighting Company, a subsidiary, covers sixtyfive communities. These communities are spread over nine counties and cover a territory that reaches across the state of Pennsylvania from the New York boundary and Lake Erie on the north to the Maryland boundary on the south. The cities of Johnstown, Erie, Warren and Clearfield Approximately 84 per cent of the corporation's gross earnings come from electric power and light operations, the remaining proportion coming from such things as gas, heating and street railway activities. Factors of Safety for Bonds.

In five years the company's gross earnings have trebled; they now run about $7,684,000 annually. Net for the twelve months ended September 30, 1924, was sufficient to cover interest on bonds presently to be outstanding about 2.6 times.

The company now is offered more business than it can handle, although it owns twelve steam plants with an aggregate capacity of 138,-177 horsepower. In 1919 the capacity was 33,500. The plant just completed and owned by the Clarion River Power Company, a subsidiary, gives an additional 24,000 horsepower. A similar amount will be added next summer by the completion of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation's plant. The system also will benefit from super-power connections already arranged with adjacent systems.

University. Ala., November 25.—
(Special.)—Six Crimson tide veterans, men of four years' service avowed their determination here tonight at a monster pep meeting to "give their all" in the game against Georgia, at Rickwood field, on Thanksgiving day. The pep meeting tonight was one of the best attended and peppiest held this season. The students gathered several hundred strong, despite a chilly breeze, and answered heartily to the calls of the three cheer leaders. Talks were made by Coach Wade Bully and Hog Vandegraaf, former Alabama stars; Hugo Friedman, Champ Pickens, President "Mike" Denny, and the six members who end their grid career Thursday.

Johnny Mack Brown saw service with both the first and second teams and strutted down the field, in his shaky stride, as if he meant to cut loose Thursday if he played. Dave Rosenfeld, the other jack rabbit, also performed with both elevens and seemed raring for the game to start.

MARIST MEETS 6TH DISTRICT AGGIES

Coach Joe Bean's Marist college football team will play its last game of the season Thursday morning on the Ivy street campus against the Barnesville Aggies.

The Marist eleven has lost only one game of its six played, and that was when Paul Lyman's Darlington High lads romped on Bean's eleven. Marist's largest scoring was done in the Cornelia High game early in the season when 26 points were roll-ed up, while the Marist goal line remained uncrossed.

Among the victories for the season is one over the strong Locust Grove eleven, which held the Oglethorpe scrubs to a 26 to 0 score. Marist won the game 12 to 7 in the final moments of play on a series of beau-tiful passes and several end runs.

PECULATION by George Congdon The Old Failing. Georgia To Win.

ACK at our old failing, we have on this day one dime on Auburn and one dime on Alabama. That means we have not picked Auburn and Alabama to win. We have picked them to lose to Tech and Georgia, but just on account of the present weakness of a naturally not too strong mind, or a general contrariness of football to follow beaten paths. One of these two things have worked to wreck nine out of every ten predictions we eyer made on football.

Tech To Win.

Take Georgia, though, and compare it with Alabama and see if you don't side with us in our convictions—not our financial measures. Georgia has a style of play that is wholly foreign to other southern colleges. Let Alabama, or any other southern team, try to work out an effective defense against the Georgia style and it is more than likely .o fall down. bama has a wise coach, but we don't believe Wallace Wade is good enough to work a defense against Notre Dame and that is the style of play on a smaller scale that Georgia uses.

TEORGIA has a Rosenfeld, a Brown and one or two others just as prominent to stop Thanksgiving day in Birmingham. Alabama must stop Kilpatrick, Thomason, Nelson, Wiehrs and half a dozen others equally good. Alabama stands to find a harder task to stop these Georgia backs, with the possible exception of Centre's Flash Covington, than it has encountered in any other game this season. Those Bulldogs shoot out at every angle imaginable and their style of work behind a sound interference is something to talk about. Alabama is using smart plays. Give Wade all the credit for them. They have done wonders against every team Alabama has played—except Centre. But Georgia ought to be well versed in the defenses against these plays. Georgia, like Notre Dame, we believe, can be stopped only by the calculations of six astronomers, eight Philadelphia lawyers and 14 elephants.

ECH ought to win over Auburn because of the semblance of power to push on that Tech has found so late in the season. Tech didn't how this against Vanderbilt, but you'll have to figure, too, that Auburn didn't go up to Minneapolis and beat Minnesota, 16 to 0, as the Com-Tech has Wycoff, who has gained ground against every team Tech has played. Tech also has lke Williams, Wilton, now a halfback, and other backs who are just finding out how to run through holes that great line is just learning to punch.

Auburn has a remarkable defensive team. It couldn't have held Georgia to one touchdown, although Georgia was "off couple of weeks back in Columbus. Auburn so far, however, has failed ot show the driving power that means touchdowns. It has Green, Harrison, Williams and Turner-Salter is through for the season—and all are good, but we don't think they can stop Wycoff and Williams, at least.

with while on the Pacific coast is:
"How does football out here compare with that played by the best teams in the east?"

The answer is that there is little to choose between them. They are almost identical. In lending spectacular coloring to their gridiron clashes, however, it must be conceded that the far west is slightly shead of Also as regard the east. Also as regards scenic adjuncts, the California-Stanford game at Berkeley last Saturday was played amid the most beautiful and picturesque setting the writer ever has viewed.

The escutcheon of the forward pass and the screening of it was very highly developed in Saturday's game. California's short pass was extremely deceptive and so were Stanford's long passes.

Pass Defense Weaker. The defense of both teams to the forward pass however, seemed weaker than it is in the final games of the season played in the east. California and Stanford's punting, on an average, was quite as good as is seen in any of the final games of the game backfield players on both sides were cautious about taking fly balls on the run but later they took more chances.

The snapping back of the ball by both centers was quite on a par with that of any eastern team.

Grange Compared. Another question which meets th writer very frequently is: "How does Grange, of Illinois, compare with such stars as Eckersall, Heston, Poe, Baker, Craig, Hammond.

Thorpe, Killinger, Harley, Gipp and other famous stars? Do you consider Grange the best football player ever developed or just an equal of the best?" The difficulty of making such comparison is that the game has changed. Grange has a greater allround scope-a thing made necessary by the modern game in which the forward pass is now taking such a prominent part. His individual characteristics are:

The covering of kicks by the ends was very good. Perhaps this accounts in some ways for failure of both California and Stanford to get run backs from punts. In the early part of throws off tacklers.

TIGERS AND YELLOW JACKETS CLASH IN 25TH CONTEST

Games Started Thirty-Two Years Ago; Last Season Marked First No-Decision

BY JULIAN GRIFFIN.

Tomorrow is the day of the game!
That statement is specific enough for gridiron fans of this section, but in view of the numerous contests to be played throughout the country, it is well to go into details and explain that the game in question at present is the annual Tech-Auburn encounter, to be played at Grant field between the colorful aggregations of the two colorful aggregations of the two institutions.

The teams first met on the field of battle in 1892, 32 years ago, in a contest that was won by the Plainsmen by the score of 26 to 0 (as well as we can remember). They did not meet the following year, but the Tiger stepped out two years later and swamped the Yellow Jackets, 96 to 0, and won the third game by a score won the third game by a score

Last year when they battled through rain and slush without scoring, marked the first tie between the two teams. The game tomorrow will have very important bearing on the ratings of the year. A victory for either camp would earry with it a successful season, but a defeat would be more than the Jackets or the Plainsmen could pack away and call the season a success.

Serimmaging mixed in as the workout orgressed. With the dope leaning Techward, the Plainsmen will go to the Georgia metropolis with a determination to shake off the jinx of defeat that has followed so closely on their heels for the last three games. Optimistic Auburn supporters have predicted a repetition of last year's 0 to 0 game as a decision for next Thursday in spite of the deluge of Tech odds that appear to be taking the limelight. LOCAL RIDERS ENTER HUNT

All preparations for the fox hunt on Thanksgiving sponsored by the Ponce de Leon Riding academy have been completed, and there's nothing else to do but wait for the starting. The chase will begin near Spiller park and will come to a close on the polo field at Piedmont park. This is the first hunt staged in Atlanta in a num-

New York, November 25.—Radio broadcasting of boxing bouts is at an end, so far as Tex Rickard is concerned, it was learned at Madison Square Garden today. The reason given by one close to the New York promoter is that use of radio keeps down attendance at bouts.

Garden officials said the radio listener has been satisfied with a blow tener has been satisfied with a blow by blow story as broadcast and there-fore has not contributed his financial share to the support of the sport. Baseball contests, especially the world series, and the leading foot-

BOBBY PREPS FOR EXHIBITION

Bobby Jones, Atlanta's national amateur golf champion, returned home Monday afternoon after a ten days' business' trip through Texas, and immediately spent a few minutes on the East Lake golf course limbering up in preparation for an exhibition match to be played at Asheville, N. C., early in December. A plan is on foot to have Bobby play in an exhibition foursome with Walter Hagen. Joe Kirkwood and Perry Adair during the early part of next week, but no definite arrangements have been made as yet.

Tampa, Fla., November 25.—Major J. A. Van Fleet, head football coach and military instructor at the Uni-versity of Florida, has served his versity of Florida, has served his four-year term in military service at the school and must be transferred elsewhere under government regulations. His term expired early in the present football season, but he exercised his right to a three-months' leave of absence to finish the coaching work. Several prominent footbal coaches have been mentioned as a possible successor.

Sale of Fine Coats

THIS very remarkable collection of fine coats with Fox and Natural Lynx furs makes one of those rare occasions when we can offer coats for less than a hundred dollars that were made to sell for a hundred and fifty dollars--coats irresistible in the fullness of their beauty.

Just one of those very advantageous buys that come to the attention of our New York buying office — a contract so large that we can almost make our own price. Our prorata share was a little less than two hundred coats.

In turn we make the price to your advantage today — just in time for the big game.

> Every coat is of uniform fine quality. They are magnificently adorned with selected furs: Natural Squirrel, Natural Lynx, Fox, Beaver, Hudson Seal.

By 10:15 o'clock the church was assed to its doors with a crowd that illed every seat, including those who had been placed in the side aisles and overflowed to adjacent sidewalks, where hundreds waited patiently for almost an hour to see the brilliant procession file in. Headed by two procession life in. Headed by two trumpeters that recalled the gallant pageantry of the medieval church, the great procession of bishops and clergy in their robes of office, preceded by two hundred choristers who were in turn led by two crucifiers, the sun clinting from the golden crosses they glinting from the golden crosses they bore, moved slowly from St. John's community house to the western door of the church. Swelling from two hundred throats rose that inspiring anthem so indelibly identified with the church, "Oh, "I'was a Joyful Sound to Hear," and as the procession ascended the long aisle of St. John's another great volume of mu.ac. "Christ Is Made the Sure Foundation," poured from the church and was heard for the church and was heard far

CONSIDERED PRO-JAP Other members of the new cabinet

Peking, November 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Tuan Chi-Jui, "chief of executive power," a title which he selected to designate his position as head of the new central Chinese government of Yang Shu-Chan, former ernment, today named his cabinet. The most outsanding feature of the new governmental family is the absence of the Chihli influence and the predomination of the Anfu, sometimes called the pro-Japanese party of China. The cabinet is composed of:

Tang Shao-Yi, foreign minister and ex-premier, who took the place in 1912 after the abdication of the Manchudynasty. He was educated in America and served as the first governor of the Mukden area upon the reorgan-ization of the government of Manchu ria in 1907

Palmyra swung the bulkhead door open. Then, with the last note of eight bells coming down to her, she hesitated. From somewhere below she could hear, with every pitch of the yacht, the clank-clank of iron. A sea burst against the vessel's side and the girl was startled by the force of the impact. Now that she was alone, how different it was down here; the darkness menacing, alive with groaning whispers of sound, yet empty save for that unseen presence. She was, unexpectedly, a little afraid.

But she had her definite purpose. Palmyra placed sandwiches, a bottle of water, an electric torch on the deck ahead. Then she entered and shut the heavy door. Instantly she had let go she staggered, came down on the planking in a heap. Never before had she tried to stand in the reeling 'tween decks with no slightest flicker of light by which the eye could keep an equilibrium. She was no longer afraid. That had been the night, rather than the lurking form she could so well have feared. For hers was the courage of innocence. Her sole contact with outlawry of life having been in fiction, she had scarcely any real perception that such men, such dangers, were actually to be met in existence.

As she crouched now she was feeling for the torch. She could hear it rolling back and forth in capjricious figures, elusive, exasperating. Then, at last, it bumped against her hand and she switched on the current.

"Here I am," she announced cheerily. Silence.

She got up, waited, the torch casting a moon of light upon the food and water.

Presently she raised the lamp. Its rays advanced along the deck to the end of the compartment, returned across the bottom of the line of trunks, stopped.

of a man, small, plump, dressed in a way one might associate with the race track, ringside. The checked suit, fancy vest, bright tan gloves, above all the walking stick, were ludicrously unnautical. With the light on the man's face, Palmyra barely suppressed a laugh.

"Pardon me," she said at length, "but you're not quite the, the character I expected. The torch cutting you off at the chin, you look just like one of the cherubim." He owled back with an expression of disfavor. "Well, I'm not," he said shortly. "I'm a seafaring man."

The voice was American. At first glimpse the juvenile note had returned ten fold. Pink.

While the Rainbow rose to a sea, poised aloft, came slumping down again, Palmyra continued to stare, puzzled. Then, "What a bad little boy you must have been," she said to herself. And, "What a bad little boy you still are.' The face broke into a grin, and the man said: "I ask you, lady, is it

She took up the water and sandwiches, and put these on the trunk next that on which he sat. Then she backed away to a seat opposite, turned the torch upon them. One of the gloved hands snatched up the water, and he drank eagerly. "I sure was dry as hel—as pueliko," he said. "Not a drop since I stove in my own bottle."

He reached for a sandwich, and the girl wished he would take off those gloves. Not every lady," he went on admiringly, "would lay below at midnight t' ferret out a stowaway." As the Rainbow drove into another sea there came again that fet-tered clink and clank of iron away somewhere in the dark. At the sound Palmyra stirred with a returning disquiet, vague, but insistent, that could scarcely have been a response to anything in the man's tone.

"I knew you wouldn't dare touch me, for you couldn't have she asked. There came an approving chuckle. "I see, I mean I hear, y' got a head on you," said the voice. "And," it added, "I thank y' for keeping dark—not now, but this afternoon. The minute y' says that about Al somebody and the thieves I knew y' was kidding."

But a moment later she laughed. "Why should I have been afraid?"

She shifted the light to his face. "Why are you aboard?" she de-He hesitated.

"Because," he explained presently, "I'd sooner be here than in the cold, cold grave. Not," he added with a shiver which set the plump cheeks a-tremble, "that I ain't cold here, too."
"Grave?" inquired Palmyra.

"Bullet," explained the stowaway. The girl smiled invisibly. She did not think any one would feel it necessary to shoot such a plump little man. "As for who I am," he continued, "I'm asking you, lady, do y' know the Line? The Line island, I mean—the Gilberts, Marshalls, Carolines?" She shook her head. Then, realizing he could not see, added a Master o' my own craft."

"You don't look like a sailor." Ponape Burke glanced down at his invisible body in a naive sense of compliment. "Mangaia, eh?" he conceded affably. She'd never guess he'd been beating about the Pacific for seventeen years, now would she? When a man got back at last to America, God's country, it was up to him to look civilized, dressy; to rig out in style, as befitted one who'd owned and mastered some of the sweetest sailing schooners that ever cut the

The girl smiled delightedly. Once again, "Arabian Nights," ahoy! There had been, it seemed, a Chinese merchant of Bagdad—no, Honolulu—who was sending a cargo to California that would go under the hatches rice and tea, but come out coolies and opium. He wanted just the right sort of man along to smuggle them through, and Ponape Burke, who had been idling about the town, was chosen.

"But, lady," he explained earnestly, "don't mistake. I sure meant t' play fair and square with Uncle Sam. I planned both t' make a piece o' side money and do my plumb duty as a citizen by tipping off the contra-But Uncle Sam had proved an unbelievable tightwad, and the orientals

Henry Grady Christened, GUILTY VERDICTS REACHED BY JURY 500 Guests Laud New Hotel IN FRAUD CASES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Half a thousand Atlantans feasted, danced and made merry into the early flow manutes long, of the days when she and Henry Grady went to school hours of this morning christening the new Henry Grady hotel, the intest addition to the city's great group of hostelries.

The dinner-dance, sponsored by the Atlanta chapter of the U. D. C., which marked the official opening of the great new temple of civic hospitality, was one of the most brilliant functions Atlanta has ever witnessed. Leaders in all branches of the city's social and business life attended and a roster of the guests read like a modern Who's Who, plentifully besprinkled with the clocks of the city. plentifully besprinkled with the names of Atlanta's bistory, great names of Atlanta's bistory, names which are indelibly inscribed upon the record of growth and advancement in the community.

New Art Of Inn-Keeping.

The new hotel, thrown open to the public simultaneously with the formal dinner, is probably the most beautiful material expression of the new art of inn-keeping to be found in the south. Its decoration and ornamentation strikes a note of simplicity. There is nothing ornate or tremendous about the interior of this new hotel. Rather does it impress the visitor with a the interior of this new hotel. Rather does it impress the visitor with a sense of the beautiful as expressed in pleasant and comfortable, homelike surroundings. It is already permeated with an atmosphere of welcome, and it is safe to predict that in the months and years to come it will rank among and years to come it will rank among
